

---

New Directions in Media and Politics

---

Second Edition

Edited by Travis N. Ridout

---

Contents

---

|                                                                                                |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| List of Figures                                                                         | xi         |
| Notes on Contributors                                                                   | xiii       |
| Preface                                                                                 | xvii       |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 1 Introduction                                                                          | 1   |
| TRAVIS N. RIDOUT                                                                               |            |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 2 The American Media System Today: Is the Public Fragmenting?                           | 7   |
| NATALIE JOMINI STROUD AND ASHLEY MUDDIMAN                                                      |            |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 3 Political Dynamics of Framing                                                         | 29  |
| S.R. GUBITZ, SAMARA KLAR, JOSHUA ROBISON, AND JAMES N. DRUCKMAN                                |            |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 4 Distrust of the News Media as a Symptom and a Further Cause of Partisan Polarization  | 54  |
| JONATHAN M. LADD AND ALEXANDER R. PODKUL                                                       |            |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 5 All Politics Is Local? Assessing the Role of Local Television News in a Polarized Era | 80  |
| ERIKA FRANKLIN FOWLER                                                                          |            |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 6 News Media and War: Warmongers or Peacemakers?                                        | 99  |
| PIERS ROBINSON                                                                                 |            |
|                                                                                            |            |
| 7 Campaigns Go Social: Are Facebook, Snapchat, and Twitter Changing Elections?          | 122 |
| YOUNG MIE KIM, RICHARD JAMES HEINRICH, SOO YUN KIM, AND ROBYN BARAGWANATH                      |            |

|                                                                                                                                  |            |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 8 The Move to Mobile: What's the Impact on Citizen News Attention?                                                        | 143 |
| JOHANNA DUNAWAY, KATHLEEN SEARLES, MINGXIAO SUI,AND NEWLY PAUL                                                               |            |
| 9 Negative Campaigns: Are They Good for American Democracy?                                                               | 158 |
| YANNA KRUPNIKOV AND ELIZABETH C. CONNORS                                                                                         |            |
| 10 Targeting Campaign Messages: Good for Campaigns but Bad for America?                                                   | 174 |
| MICHAEL M. FRANZ                                                                                                                 |            |
| 11 Do the Media Give Women Candidates a Fair Shake?                                                                       | 199 |
| REGINA G. LAWRENCE                                                                                                               |            |
| 12 Congress and the Media: Who Has the Upper Hand?                                                                        | 210 |
| C. DANIELLE VINSON                                                                                                               |            |
| 13 Reassessing the Power of Speech in a Crowded Media World: Conditional Modern Presidential Leadership of Public Opinion | 230 |
| BRANDON ROTTINGHAUS                                                                                                              |            |
| 14 Media and Public Policy: Does Media Coverage Depend on the Medium?                                                     | 251 |
| MATT GUARDINO                                                                                                                    |            |
| 15 Fake News: What Is the Influence of Fabricated Stories and Efforts to Undermine Media Credibility?                     | 274 |
| TRAVIS N. RIDOUT AND ERIKA FRANKLIN FOWLER                                                                                       |            |
| 16 Politics in the Digital Age: A Scary Prospect?                                                                         | 293 |
| RODERICK P. HART                                                                                                                 |            |
| Index                                                                                                                     | 311 |