

The Birth of the Russian Democracy

A. J. SACK

Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States

Russian Information Bureau
Woolworth Building
New York City

CONTENTS

Part I

The History of the Revolutionary Movement in Russia

CHAPTER I

The Decembrists—The First Russian Revolutionists.....19

The founding of the first Russian revolutionary organizations after the Napoleonic War—Pavel Pestel—"Union of Salvation"—Its aim—Mikhail Muraviov—"Union of Welfare"—Its aims—Mutiny in the Semionovsky Regiment in 1820—"Society of United Slavs"—The "Northern Society"—Its Constitution—The "Southern Society's" Constitution—The uprising of December 14, 1825—The trial of the Decembrists—Exceptions and prison sentences—The findings of the Investigating Committee.

CHAPTER II

The Revolutionary Movement during the Reign of Nicholas I and the First Part of the Reign of Alexander II.....28

Student-circles in the University of Moscow—Hertzen's Circle—Stankevitch's Circle—The "educational" policy of Nicholas I—The effect of the French Revolution of 1848 on the Russian "intelligentsia"—Bielinsky, the "Annals of the Fatherland" and the "Contemporary"—The Buturlin Committee—Censorship measures—The Petrashevsky Circle and F. M. Dostoevsky—The War with Turkey in 1853—Spreading of revolutionary sentiment among the conservative elements and the masses—Death of Nicholas I.

The beginning of the reign of Alexander II—The reform movement—Alexander Hertzen and his "Bell"—The emancipation of the serfs in 1861—Disturbances among the peasantry—The movement in the University of Kazan—The movement among the nobility of the Province of Tver—Peter Kropotkin's characterization of Alexander II—The movement in commercial and industrial circles—growth of revolutionary spirit among "intelligentsia"—Chernyshevsky's arrest—Karakozov's attempt on life of Alexander II—Governmental repressions—Count Dmitri Tolstoy and his educational policy—Repressions against the press.

CHAPTER III

The Revolutionary and Liberal Movement during the Latter Part of the Reign of Alexander II.....41

The Narodnichestvo—Disturbances in the Universities—M. A. Bakunin—Circle of Tchaikovsky—Kropotkin on the Tchaikovsky Circle—The revolutionary center in Zurich—P. L. Lavrov and M. A. Bakunin—The movement "V narod" (To the people)—The society "Land and Freedom"—The demonstration before the Kazan Cathedral in December, 1876—Plekhanov's speech—War with Turkey—The inefficiency of the bureaucracy—Governmental persecutions and terror—Revolutionary terror—Vera Zasulich—Assassination of Gen. Mezentsov—Assassination of Prince Dmitri Kropotkin—The Zemstvo movement—I. I. Petrunkevitch's speech in the Chernigov Zemstvo—Split in the "Land and Freedom"—Congress at Lipetsk—Congress at Voronezh—New Parties: "Black Repartition" and "Will of the People"—Formation of the "Executive Committee"—Attempts on the life of Alexander II—Dictatorship of Loris-Melikoff—Assassination of Alexander II.

CHAPTER IV

H. A. Lopatin—A typical Russian Revolutionist of the Sixties61

Lopatin's college days—His debut as a revolutionist—Arrest and exile—Second arrest—Trial—Escape—His life in Switzerland—His return to Russia—Trip to Siberia in search of Chernyshevsky—His arrest—His sudden escape—His life in Zurich—His arrest upon return to Russia—His escape from the Vologda prison—The assassination of Soudeykin—Lopatin's arrest—The trial—Imprisonment in the Schlüsselburg fortress—His liberation in 1905.

CHAPTER V

The Reaction during the Reign of Alexander III.....69

The conference of March 4, 1881—Pobiedonostzev's speech and victory—Manifesto of April 29, 1881—Change of Ministry—Decided reactionary course—Degaiev's treachery—Arrest of the remnant of the "Will of the People"—Annihilation of previous judiciary reforms—Religious and race persecutions—Measures against non-orthodox sects—Measures against Poles and Jews—Measures against the press.

CHAPTER VI

The Revolutionary and Liberal Movement during the Early Years of the Reign of Nicholas II.....75

Revived hope in liberal circles—Zemstvos' delegations—Address of the Tver Zemstvo—Tzar's answer to the "senseless dreams"—Disappointment among the liberals—The open letter from the revolutionists abroad—Pobiedonostzev's and Von Plehve's policy—Founding of the Union of Liberation—The excommunication of Leo Tolstoy—Persecutions of Jews—Pogroms—Measures against the Georgians and Armenians—Confiscation of Armenian Church-lands and Church-funds.

Development of capitalism in Russia—Growth of city proletariat—Group for the Emancipation of Labor—Russian Social-Democratic Workingmen's Party—Witte's policy towards labor—The strike in Odessa—The Party of Socialists-Revolutionists—Its Fighting Organization.

CHAPTER VII

The Activities of the Fighting Organization of the Party of Socialists-Revolutionists81

Assassination of the Minister of Education, Bogolepov—Peter Karpovich—Assassination of the Minister of Interior, Sypiagin—Stepan Balmashev—His execution—Assassination of the Governor of Ufa, Bogdanovich—Grigory Gershuni—Story of his life—His trial—His escape from Siberia—Assassination of the Minister of Interior, Von Plehve—E. Sazonov.

CHAPTER VIII

The Beginning of the Revolution of 1905—Bloody Sunday. .94

War with Japan—Assassination of Von Plehve—Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky—Congress of Zemstvos—Pobiedonostzev's influence—New tide of reaction—Bloody Sunday—Gapon's letters to the Minister of Interior and to the Tzar—The demands of the workingmen—Shooting on the people—Gapon's new letter to the Tzar and appeal to the Russian Socialist Parties.

CHAPTER IX

The Rising Tide of Revolution.....106

Spread of disturbances and strikes throughout the country—Martial law in Poland, the Caucasus and over all railroads—Assassination of Grand Duke Serghei Alexandrovich—Ivan Kaliaiev—The activities of the Social-Democrats and Socialists-Revolutionists—The Peasants' Movement—The activities of the Liberals—Congress of Zemstvos in Moscow—Deputation to the Tzar—Prince Trubetskoy's speech—The Tzar's answer—The spread of Revolution—Mutiny on the Battleship "Potiomkin."

CHAPTER X

On the Crest of the Revolution of 1905.....114

The Manifesto of August 3rd—Second Congress of Zemstvos—October, 1905—First General Political Strike—Manifesto of October 17th—Massacres of Jews and "intelligentsia"—The organization of the Council of Workmen's Delegates in St. Petersburg—Mutiny in Kronstadt—The movement for autonomy in Poland—Second General Political Strike—Third Congress of Zemstvos—Split among the Liberals—Organization of the Party of Octobrists—The weakening of the Revolution—Arrest of the President of the Council of Workmen's Delegates—Arrest of the Central Committee of the Peasants' Union—Martial law in St. Petersburg—Arrest of the Council of Workmen's Delegates—The Third General Political Strike—The coming reaction.

CHAPTER XI

Zinaida Konopliannikova and Maria Spiridonova.....124

The armed uprising in Moscow in December, 1905—Punitive expeditions—Assassination of General Mien—Zinaida Konopliannikova—Story of her life—Her speech at the trial—Her execution—Maria Spiridonova—The shooting of Lujenovsky—Her arrest and torture.

CHAPTER XII

The First and the Second Duma.....136

The Government's reactionary measures before the convocation of the First Duma—Socialists' boycott of the First Duma—Constitutional-Democrats' control of the First Duma—Reforms demanded by the First Duma—The dissolution of the First Duma—The Viborg Manifesto—Elections to the Second Duma—Socialists' factions in the Second Duma—The Government's policy towards the Second Duma—The dissolution of the Second Duma—The reactionary policy of the Tzar's Government.

CHAPTER XIII

The Coming of the Second Revolution.....157

The social classes, participants in the First Revolution—Their needs—The defeat of the First Revolution—Its causes—The reaction of 1906-1910—The breaking of the reactionary wave—The coming of the Second Revolution—Great strike in St. Petersburg on the eve of war—The declaration of war—The change in Socialist tactics—The joint Socialist Manifesto to the Russian laboring masses.

Part II

The Spiritual Leaders of the Russian Revolution

CHAPTER I

Mikhail Alexandrovich Bakunin.....171

Mikhail Bakunin's early years—Polish Rebellion of 1830—First feelings of hatred for despotism—Friendship with Stankevitch and Bielinsky—Life abroad—Meeting with Karl Marx, Engels and Proudhon—Expulsion from France—Hertzen's characterization of Bakunin's life in Paris—Bakunin in Germany—Expulsion from Prussia and Saxony—Participation in the German Revolution—Bakunin's arrest in Saxony—Death sentence and extradition to Austria—Again death sentence and extradition to Russia—Bakunin in the Fortress of St. Peter and Paul—Nicholas I, about Bakunin—Bakunin in the Fortress of Schlüsselburg—Bakunin in Siberia—His escape from Siberia—His life abroad—The organization of the "International Union of Social Democracy"—Franco-Prussian War—Bakunin's activities in France—The approach of old age—Bakunin's farewell letter to his comrades—Prince Kropotkin, about Bakunin.

CHAPTER II

Peter Lavrovich Lavrov.....180

Lavrov's life and work before his arrest—Incarceration in the Military Prison of St. Petersburg—Banishment to Vologda—The escape abroad—Joining the International—"Historic Letters"—Editing the "Vperiod"—Lavrov's scientific work—Editing the "Viestnik Narodnoy Voli"—Lavrov as recognized leader of the Russian "intelligentsia"—Tchaikovsky, about Lavrov—The last years of Lavrov's life.

CHAPTER III

Peter Alexeyevich Kropotkin.....187

Kropotkin's childhood—School days and preparation for a Court career—First acquaintance with revolutionary ideas—Life at Court—Scientific studies—Life in Siberia—Research work—Return to St. Petersburg—Studies at the University—The turning point in Kropotkin's life—Revolutionary activities—Life in Switzerland—Affiliation with the International Workingmen's Association—Propaganda among the workers in the Jura Mountains—Return to Petrograd—Affiliation with the Tchaikovsky Circle—Arrest in 1874—Escape—The assassination of Alexander II—The Holy League—Kropotkin's exile from Switzerland—Kropotkin's arrest in connection with the uprising of the weavers of Lyons in 1882—Work and impressions in prison—Release from prison in 1886—"Mutual Aid"—Return to Russia in 1917—Stand on the last war—Speech before the National Conference in Moscow.

CHAPTER IV

Ekaterina Constantinovna Breshko-Breshkovskaya.....201

Breshkovskaya's parents—Early education—First activities as a revolutionist and propagandist—Arrest—Trial—Her term as hard labor convict—Exile to Siberia—Unsuccessful attempt at escape—Second term as hard labor convict in the Kara mines—Hunger strike—George Kennan, about the "Grandmother of the Russian Revolution"—Her return to Central Russia in 1896—Affiliation with the Party of Socialists-Revolutionists—Stay in the United States in 1904—Return to Russia—Arrest in 1907—Preliminary confinement in the Fortress of St. Peter and Paul—Exile to Siberia—Liberation in 1917—Breshkovskaya's message to America.

CHAPTER V

George Valentinovich Plekhanov.....216

Association with the Party of the "Will of the People"—Escape from arrest—Affiliation with "Land and Freedom"—First literary works—Propaganda among the workers—Secession from the Party of the "Will of the People"—Forced trip abroad—Study of scientific socialism—Plekhanov's role as founder of the Group for the Emancipation of Labor—His contributions to Socialist literature—Controversy with the "Will of the People"—Literary works—Attitude towards the Bolsheviks—Works on the history of the development of Russian political thought—Plekhanov's stand on the last war—The Socialist manifesto to the working people of Russia—Plekhanov as the future spiritual leader of the Russian Democracy.

Part III

The Birth of the Russian Democracy

CHAPTER I

The March Revolution.....227

The beginning of the March Revolution—The Tzar's abdication—Formation of Provisional Government—Duma's part in the first days of the Revolution—Formation of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—First declaration of the Provisional Government—Abolition of religious and national restrictions and the granting of civil liberties to all Russian citizens—First official notice of the Revolution to the foreign Powers—Foreign policy of the first Provisional Government as outlined by Miliukov—Domestic policy of the Provisional Government—Liberation of the oppressed nationalities—Finnish autonomy—Appeal to the Poles—Extension of equal rights to the Jews—Recognition of the Provisional Government by the United States—Recognition by other Allied countries.

CHAPTER II

The Economic Program of the Provisional Government...256

The economic program of the first Provisional Government as the inevitable program of Russia's future economic development—A. I. Konovalov's speech before the Moscow Stock Exchange on April 4, 1917—Two fundamental problems before New Russia—The relation of the Provisional Government to capital and labor—Russia's need of foreign capital—American-Russian rapprochement—Construction of a merchant marine—The necessity for a thorough study of Russia's national resources and their development—Development of the mining industry—Nationalization of underground riches—Measures concerning the reorganization of industry and its restoration to normal pre-war basis—Coöperation of the people, essential factor in carrying out reforms.

CHAPTER III

The First Crisis—The Resignation of A. I. Guchkov and P. N. Miliukov.....272

Breach between Provisional Government and Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Miliukov's communication to the Allied Powers—Attitude of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Guchkov's and Miliukov's resignation.

CHAPTER IV

The Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates and its relation to the War.....275

Resolution to call International Socialist Conference—Skobelev's speech—Appeal to the Socialists of all countries—Appeal to the Socialists of the Allied countries—Appeal to the Socialists of the Austro-German Alliance—Appeal to the workingmen and Socialists of the neutral countries—Tsereteli's speech—Appeal to the Army.

CHAPTER V

The Convention of Delegates from the Front.....283

Guchkov's speech—Kerensky's speech—Tseretelli's speech—Guchkov's second speech—Plekhanov's speech—Sailor Batkin's speech—His answer to the Bolsheviks—Resolution adopted by the Convention.

CHAPTER VI

The First All-Russian Congress of Peasants' Delegates...305

S. S. Maslov's speech—Breshko-Breshkovskaya's speech—Chernov's speech—N. D. Avksentiev's speech—Chernov's second speech—Kerensky's speech—Dr. Smirnov's speech—Bunakov's speech—Col. Jakubovich's speech—Resolutions adopted by the Congress—Appeal to the people—Executive Committee of the Congress.

CHAPTER VII

The Middle Class in its Relation to the War and to the Reconstruction of Russia.....327

Private sessions of the Duma—Guchkov's speech—Miliukov's speech—Maklakov's speech—Rodzianko's statement—The All-Russian Congress of Officers' Delegates—Gushchin's speech—Steklov's speech—Shidlovsky's speech—Greetings from Allied nations—Agnieev's and Batkin's speeches—Kerensky's speech—Resolution regarding the war—Resolution regarding internal conditions of the Army.

CHAPTER VIII

The Second Cabinet.....346

Guchkov's and Miliukov's resignation—The Government crisis—Decision of the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates to participate in Government—Declaration of the new Cabinet—Trotzky's opposition to a Coalition Cabinet—Resolution of the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Vote of confidence in the Government—Trotzky's speech at the All-Russian Congress of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Tseretelli's speech—Kamenev's speech—Resolution adopted by the Congress.

CHAPTER IX

Allied Labor and Socialist Leaders and their Relation to the Russian Revolution356

Visit of representatives of Allied Labor and Socialist Movement to Russia—Samuel Gompers' appeal to the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Emile Vandervelde's statement—Labriola's speech—Albert Thomas' speech at the Conference of Executive Committee of the All-Russian Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Thomas' address at a meeting of officers of the Moscow garrison—Thomas' speech before the general meeting of the Moscow Council of Soldiers' Delegates—His final statement—Arthur Henderson's speech before the Executive Committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Henderson's speech before English colony in Moscow—Henderson's speech before Executive Committee of Moscow Council of Workmen and Soldiers' Delegates.

CHAPTER X

The American Mission to Russia..... 377

Personnel of Special American Mission to Russia—President Wilson's note to Russia—President Wilson's statement on the aims of American Mission to Russia—Senator Root's address before Russian Provisional Government—Terestchenko's reply—The activities of the American Mission—James Duncan at the All-Russian Congress of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Tscheidze's reply—Charles Edward Russell at the conference of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—The return of the Mission to the United States—Senator Root's address at reception tendered by City of New York—Senator Root's speech before Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York—The achievements of the Mission.

CHAPTER XI

The Russian Mission to the United States..... 391

Arrival of the Russian Mission—Personnel of the Mission—Ambassador Bakhmeteff's speech at presentation of credentials—President Wilson's reply—Ambassador Bakhmeteff's statement to the press—Address before the House of Representatives—Address before the Senate.

CHAPTER XII

On the Eve of the Offensive..... 405

Kerensky's part in the preparation of the offensive—Attitude of the All-Russian Congress of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates—Attitude of the All-Russian Cossacks' Congress—Attitude of the Duma—Kerensky's order to the Army—Polemics between Lenine and Kerensky.

CHAPTER XIII

The Great Crisis—July, 1917..... 416

The disaster in the Army—Prince Lvov's resignation—Changes in the Cabinet—Appeal to the Army—Gen. Kornilov's appeal to the troops—Resolution of Executive Committee of All-Russian Councils of Workmen's, Soldiers' and Peasants' Delegates—Appeal to the Army—Restoration of capital punishment—Principal causes of disaster in the Army—Ukrainian problem—The policy of the Provisional Government towards the Ukraine—Appeal of the All-Russian Congress of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates regarding the Bolshevik agitation—First Bolshevik revolt—Its suppression—Declaration of the new Cabinet.

CHAPTER XIV

The National Conference in Moscow..... 434

Chernov's resignation—New Governmental crisis—The National Conference—Its composition and competence—President Wilson's message to the National Conference—Kerensky's speech—Nekrasov's speech—General Kornilov's speech—General Kaledine's speech—Tscheidze's speech—Guchkov's speech—Tseretelli's speech—Boublikov's speech—Breshko-Breshkovskaya's speech—Peter Kropotkin's speech—Plekhanov's speech—Kerensky's concluding speech.

CHAPTER XV

The Fall of Riga and Kornilov's Revolt.....475

Riga's fall—Its cause and effect—Kornilov's revolt—Kerensky's statement—Kornilov's telegram to the Central Naval Committee—Telegram sent by Provisional Government—Kerensky's order to the Troops of Petrograd—Order to the Cossacks—His order to the entire Army—Order to the Railway Workers—Kornilov's arrest—Russia proclaimed a Republic—V. N. Lvov's part in Kornilov's revolt—Gen. Kornilov's telegram to Kerensky and to Gen. Brusilov—Kornilov's telegram to Kerensky on having been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Armies—Kornilov's farewell order to the troops of the Southwestern Front.

CHAPTER XVI

The Democratic Conference and the Preliminary Parliament486

Composition of the Democratic Conference—New Coalition Cabinet—Its declaration—Preliminary Parliament—Attitude of Bolsheviks towards Preliminary Parliament—Kerensky's last speech.

CHAPTER XVII

Russia under the Rule of the Bolsheviks.....489

Last act of Preliminary Parliament—Role of Petrograd garrison in Bolshevik revolt—Overthrow of the Provisional Government—The Bolshevik Cabinet—Origin of the Bolshevik movement—Cause of the Bolsheviks' success—Attitude of moderate Socialist leaders toward the Bolsheviks—Character of the Bolshevik rule—Foreign policy of the Bolsheviks—Domestic policy of the Bolsheviks—Economic and financial results of Bolshevik rule—Russia's finances under Bolshevik regime—Railroads—Coal production—Destruction of industries—Disappearance of proletariat—Attitude of the majority of Russian people toward the Bolsheviks at the moment of the revolt—Attitude of peasantry—Manifesto of Executive Committee of All-Russian Council of Peasants' Delegates—Declaration of the Council of the All-Russian Congress of Cooperative Organizations—Resolution and proclamation of the Central Committee of the Party of Socialists-Revolutionists—Appeal of the Petrograd Committee of the Social-Democratic Party—Lenine, on the political parties in Russia—The evolution of Bolshevism—The Provisional Government and the Constituent Assembly—The Bolsheviks and the Constituent Assembly—The disbandment of the Constituent Assembly—Laws and resolutions passed by the Constituent Assembly—An appeal to the Socialists of Europe by the Party of Socialists-Revolutionists and the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party—Bolshevist terror in Russia—L. Martov's pamphlet—Leonid Andreiev on Bolshevism and Allied policy on Russia—Anti-Bolshevist movements in Russia—The Volunteer Army in Southern Russia—Its origin and achievements—The struggle on the Volga front—The Czecho-Slovaks and the People's Army—The Conference in Ufa—Directory of Five—The Omsk coup d'état—The new Government in Omsk—The Siberian Army—The Northern Army—The causes of the failure of the anti-Bolshevist movements in Russia—Conclusion.