

Political Science

A Global Perspective

Leonardo Morlino
Dirk Berg-Schlosser
Bertrand Badie

Los Angeles | London | New Delhi
Singapore | Washington DC | Melbourne

Table of contents

|                                                                        |           |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| List of boxes, figures, tables                                  | ix        |
| About the authors                                               | xi        |
| Preface                                                         | xiii      |
|                                                                    |           |
| Introduction: Origins of political science and basic definition | 1  |
| Contending definitions                                                 | 2         |
| Different traditions and origins                                       | 6         |
| From politics to political science                                     | 9         |
|                                                                    |           |
| Part I: Background                                              | 13 |
|                                                                    |           |
| 1 Epistemological and methodological foundations and approaches | 15 |
| Introduction: Basic distinctions                                       | 15        |
| The epistemological foundations of the social sciences                 | 16        |
| Linking levels of analysis                                             | 20        |
| Approaches to causality                                                | 23        |
| Conclusions                                                            | 28        |
|                                                                    |           |
| 2 Research designs and methods                                  | 31 |
| Introduction: Basic distinctions                                       | 31        |
| Research designs and applicable methods                                | 33        |
| Conclusion: Overview of different methodological emphases              | 40        |
|                                                                    |           |
| 3 Relationship with neighbouring disciplines                    | 43 |
| Introduction                                                           | 43        |
| Politics as a science or an object?                                    | 44        |
| How do 'imperial sciences' work?                                       | 45        |
| Coexistence, exchange and frontiers                                    | 47        |
| Mixing social sciences and innovations                                 | 50        |
| Conclusions                                                            | 53        |
|                                                                    |           |
| Part II: Macro-politics                                         | 55 |
|                                                                    |           |
| 4 The social bases of politics                                  | 57 |
| Introduction                                                           | 57        |
| Levels of socio-economic development                                   | 59        |
| Social classes and cleavages                                           | 60        |
| Comparative historical approaches                                      | 63        |
| Political culture: The conceptual framework                            | 64        |
| Substantive findings, recent developments                              | 72        |
| Conclusions                                                            | 76        |

|                                                                            |            |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 5 Democracies                                                       | 79  |
| Introduction                                                               | 79         |
| State and regime, again                                                    | 79         |
| Definitions                                                                | 80         |
| Types of democracy                                                         | 87         |
| Conclusions                                                                | 91         |
| 6 Democratization                                                   | 93  |
| Introduction                                                               | 93         |
| Regime change                                                              | 94         |
| Transition and installation                                                | 94         |
| Consolidation and crisis                                                   | 100        |
| Democratic deepening and quality                                           | 104        |
| Conclusions                                                                | 108        |
| 7 Non-democratic regimes                                            | 111 |
| Introduction                                                               | 111        |
| Traditional regimes                                                        | 111        |
| Hybrid regimes                                                             | 112        |
| Authoritarian regimes                                                      | 115        |
| Processes of change                                                        | 120        |
| Mobilization and electoral authoritarianism                                | 121        |
| Conclusions                                                                | 123        |
| Part III: Governance                                                | 125 |
| 8 Government, parliament and judiciary                              | 127 |
| Introduction                                                               | 127        |
| The legislative power                                                      | 129        |
| The executive power                                                        | 134        |
| The judiciary: high courts and ordinary judges                             | 137        |
| Conclusions                                                                | 140        |
| 9 Public policies and public administration                         | 143 |
| Introduction                                                               | 143        |
| What are policies?                                                         | 144        |
| The bureaucracy                                                            | 149        |
| Policy evaluation                                                          | 152        |
| Models of policy making                                                    | 153        |
| Conclusions                                                                | 156        |
| Part IV: Meso- and micro-politics                                   | 159 |
| 10 Political participation, social movements, protests, revolutions | 161 |
| Introduction                                                               | 161        |
| A source of paradoxes?                                                     | 162        |
| The Civic Culture                                                          | 163        |

|                                                       |            |
|-------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| The social roots of political participation           | 165        |
| Different kinds of mobilization                       | 167        |
| Revolutions in perspective                            | 169        |
| Conclusions                                           | 171        |
| 11 Political communication and media           | 173 |
| Introduction                                          | 173        |
| Definitions                                           | 174        |
| Key political developments                            | 176        |
| Arenas, actors and forms                              | 178        |
| Critical aspects                                      | 180        |
| Conclusions                                           | 184        |
| 12 Interest groups                             | 186 |
| Introduction                                          | 186        |
| Origins                                               | 186        |
| Types                                                 | 187        |
| Activities                                            | 188        |
| Forms of organization                                 | 191        |
| Overall assessment                                    | 193        |
| Conclusions                                           | 194        |
| 13 Political parties                           | 196 |
| Introduction                                          | 196        |
| Origins                                               | 197        |
| Functions                                             | 200        |
| Types                                                 | 201        |
| Party systems                                         | 203        |
| Conclusions                                           | 204        |
| 14 Elections and electoral behaviour           | 207 |
| Introduction                                          | 207        |
| Electoral systems                                     | 208        |
| Electoral behaviour                                   | 210        |
| Forms of 'direct' democracy                           | 212        |
| Conclusions                                           | 213        |
| Part V: International politics                 | 215 |
| 15 The globalization of international politics | 217 |
| Introduction                                          | 217        |
| Wars paved the way to a new sub-discipline            | 217        |
| How realism dominated                                 | 219        |
| Discovering the international system                  | 221        |
| Domestic and international relations                  | 223        |
| International cooperation                             | 224        |
| Dependence                                            | 226        |

|                                   |            |
|-----------------------------------|------------|
| Power reconsidered                | 227        |
| War and peace                     | 228        |
| A rising global world             | 230        |
| Conclusions                       | 235        |
| 16 Regionalism and beyond  | 237 |
| Introduction                      | 237        |
| A political invention             | 237        |
| Main issues at stake              | 242        |
| Typology                          | 247        |
| Conclusions                       | 247        |
| Glossary                   | 249        |
| Bibliographical References | 263        |
| Index                      | 287        |